INTRODUCTION

Our Komodo Island Tour is perfect for anyone looking for a wildlife adventure holiday in Indonesia. If you are looking for a real magical getaway and a walking experience, then there is nothing better than a trip to Flores and in particular Wae Rebo. Flores is one of the most stunning Indonesian Islands with a more rustic and rawer feel to it.

The highlight of this tour is trek to Wae Rebo which takes you through the forest and up into the clouds. Once you arrive you announce yourself by sounding the bamboo clacker before being welcomed by the village chief and sitting down to lunch. You can then immerse yourself in local life with the highlight being an overnight stay in a 'Mbaru Niang', a traditional circular coned shaped house.

Spending time on the water, exploring the regions, hidden beaches and then discovering the prehistoric Komodo dragons is a wildlife lover's dream. The National Parks in the region are discoverable by boat and are simply stunning, the beaches are some of the very best in the world!

WEATHER INFORMATION - INDONESIA

BEST TIME TO VISIT KOMODO

Although Komodo National Park is one of Indonesia’s driest regions, the rainy season from January to mid-March can be pretty wild with winds, waves and heavy rainfall, meaning few tours run, especially in February.

April-June is one of the best times to visit Komodo as the islands gleam in greenery with comfortable temperatures, cool and fresh air at night, and calm seas, often featuring whale sharks.

High season, July-August, is hot, sunny, and pricier, with tour boats cluttering popular snorkel spots.

Wait instead until September, October and November for warm weather, fewer tour boats and deserted dusty tracks for trekking.
